1. The 1946 census report does not list a Boril in Yambol Okoliya. There is a Boril (selo) in Boril Obshtina, Prekhovo Okoliya, and a Boril (koliba) in Kamenitsa Obshtina, Pirdop Okoliya. Because the name-change report stated that Baykal is the new name of a Boril in Boril Obshtina, it may well be that Prekhovo Okoliya is meant rather than Yambol Okoliya.

¹The Borisovgrad-Purvomay name change took place before 1 January 1947; Borisovgrad is the older name.

PLACE-NAME CHANGES SINCE 9 SEPTEMBER 1944

This listing of place-name changes is an alphabetical and two-way index of all place-name changes which have been recorded. Those places which were omitted from the initial compilation by mistake have been listed at the end, and those names are also inserted in small letters, preceded by a "#", in the appropriate place in the main listing.

The left-hand column contains an alphabetical listing of all names, both new and old, involved in a name-change. The new ones are starred (*) when they appear in the left-hand column. The second column contains abbreviations which represent the type of place whose name has been changed.

Railroad stations have not been listed in addition to their towns unless their names differ from the names of the towns where they are located, or, unless the name of a station has been changed while the town name has remained the same.

Place-names which contain two or more words (such as the town of Khadzhi Tsonev Most) are indexed to the correct name. However, place-names which contain such words as Selo, Pole, Makhala, Dol, Vrukh, and Reka, are not cross-referenced.

The standard transliteration for Bulgarian names has been used throughout. The spelling of 1946 names is based on the spelling given in Predvaritelni Rezultati ot Prebrojavanje na Naselenieto na 31 Dekemvri 1946 (Preliminary Results of the Census of the Population to 31 December 1946), published in Sofia in 1947, even when such spelling is known to have been subsequently revised, as in the case, for example, of Kharmanlili and Bela Okoliyas (now Kharmanli and Byala).

Because some of the changes were obtained from English-language translations of the Bulgarian press announcements and the originals were not available for examination, the proper transliteration of the post-1946 name is not always certain, especially in the case of the letter "h", properly transliterated "ü" but often appearing as "u" in the translations which have been available. In these cases, the "u" has been left as received unless the proper transliteration was known, as in the case of "Gülibovo". A complete transliteration table is contained on page 36.

The third and fourth columns locate the towns which are listed in the left-hand column by obshtina and okoliya, so that there will be no possibility of applying the listed name-change to another town of the same name. These locations are given according to the 1946 census report, in spite of the fact that the town in question might have been assigned to a new obshtina since that time.

The fifth column gives the 1946 name as listed in the 1946 census report of any post-1946 name listed in the first column (starred). The fifth column is blank when it is the 1946 name which appears in the left-hand column and in those cases, the post-1946 name is listed in the sixth and final column.

The sources for this information are, in most cases, either the O-O-W translations of the Bulgarian press or the announcements contained in various issues of Geografiya or made over the Bulgarian radio. In a very few cases, unofficial reports of name-changes have been recorded in this listing, but all such cases are noted beneath the entry.

When a new town has been formed from the fusion of two previously-existing ones, the new town is listed in this index. But when two towns have been fused to make one town of the same name as one of the previous towns, the change, which is thus administrative rather than a change of names, has not been noted in this listing.

¹The abbreviations used and their explanation appear on page 35. The abbreviations in the following table are not included in the list on page 35.
